The Price Update

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. We are looking forward to spending our first holiday season on the field.

Though it will not be fun being away from family, we know that this is exactly where God wants us to be. Things have continued to stay busy for us the last couple of months. Between language school, the Bible stands at the market, and the church plant, time just keeps flying by. We had several "firsts" during the last couple of months. The church published it's first newsletter which we are handing out at the markets (It was written by the veteran missionary that we are working with right now). We held a evangelistic conference at church and had a visitor come for it. And we put up a website for the church <http://ebbc31.free.fr>. Even though this does not seem like a lot when you list it out, it has actually taken a lot of time to get everything together for these firsts. Please pray that our efforts reach out into the community and share with the lost their need for a Savior. We have planned to have one conference per month on certain topics that would interest people to get them to come to the church. Our goal is to deal with the topic properly, but more importantly to share the message of

Merry Christmas

Language School

What can I say? I never really imagined myself back in school, but both Melissa and I have agreed on this, we are back in school. We have increased the hours that we are taking. We are in class five days a week for several hours and come home and need to get right to the homework for the next day, which takes another several hours. Though it is work, it is paying off. Melissa is beginning to salvation. We put up flyers around town and we also hand them out at the Bible stands. Please pray that God would use this effort to see souls saved for Him. We are having a Christmas program at the church on December 14, and are planning to use it as a means to get people to come and listen to the music performed but also hear the true message of Christmas. Both Melissa and I will be playing in the program, though Melissa will be playing more since she will be playing the piano. Please pray that the program will go well and that we will have visitors.

understand most of the conversations around her (It is always nice to know what is said to you). Please continue praying that we would learn the language well.
